Stidham Cabinet Inc. in South Laurel County near Corbin recently hosted a nationwide meeting for AWI Woodworking. This meeting is held each quarter by a hosting Company and the guest and host work on ways to improve all of their businesses. It is the responsibility of the host to select the theme for the meeting and to provide materials as well as leadership for the round table meeting.

As the host, social events which give visitors a sample of the local flavor are part of the meeting. Begley Lumber of London and East Bernstadt Coopeage provided a very nice tour for the group which spot lighted other wood industries which treat wood differently and make different products than the AWI Firms. Thanks to the Begley's and Robinson's for providing these tours and for being gracious host.

The group was also treated to lunch at the Original Home of Kentucky Fried Chicken which was quite a thrill to our guest. Most of them thought the Colonel was a character of fiction. They were amazed that such a world known industry had such humble beginnings. Also what sampling of local flavor would be complete without a visit to Weavers' Hot Dogs for lunch? There we were provided with excellent food and service. Our guests were amazed at the history displayed on the walls of the facility. Paul Steger from Chicago had recently hosted a meeting where he took the group to Al Capone's hide out restaurant for the evening meal. The wall of this establishment mirrored those of Weavers with many historical pictures.

Stidham Cabinet is proud to have hosted the event and helped showcase our local community. We are also proud to provide jobs and services to our community as well as a large surrounding area. We are also shipping products to several other states which help provide work for many local families. Thanks to all our employees and customers for your support for our business through the past 38 years.
